Supposing the clear annual 'Rents of the Lands in NorthAmerica, (unrestrain'd by Acts of Parliament) would amount to

eri

not t is it.

and

co,

fo-

ex-

ght re-

raid.

Co-

vla-

yet

ap,

σf

for

on.

ine,

nere

ince,

our-

nce the

ion.

: 0

: 4

: 4

: 0

pling

It appears then, that the whole Tax is upwards of 65 per Cent; and if, therefore, the artificial Value of One Hundred Pounds Worth of British Manusacture, (Cloth for Instance) is, according to the above Computation, Manusacture, (Cloth for Instance) is, according to the above Computation, 33 l. 6s. 8 d. there was, before the Stamp-Alf, a Tax paid by the North-Americans, near double of that which is paid by the Inhabitants of England. If the above Sum of 33 l. 6s. 8 d. is too low, and ought to be increased, then the Tax on North-America, on the Article of Manusactures imported from Britain, must also be increased.

It shou'd seem that the Maxim of every Tax upon Labour falling ultimately upon the Consumer of its Product, cannot be strictly applied to the Product of the North-American Colonies. For, as they are obliged to send their Commodities to some Port in the British Dominions, or (where Indulgence is granted to send some of them to other Places) deprived in great gence is granted to send some of them to other Places) deprived in great Measure of the Benefit of Returns, they are by this Means subjected to dead Freight; and moreover, being confin'd in their Consumption to a particular Manusacture, and the Commodities they export, being chiefly raw Materials, they have not the Means generally in the Power of other People, Materials, they have not the Means generally in the Burthens upon others;
by raising the Price of their Labour, to throw their Burthens upon others; but are, for the most Part, obliged, both in their Exports and Imports, to submit to an arbitrary Determination of their Value, though even below first Cost.

The fanguine Genius of one of the Anti-American Writers, brings to my Mind the Fable of the Boy and the Hen that laid Golden Eggs. He is not content to wait for the Increase of the Public Revenue, by that gradual Process and Circulation of Property, which an Attention to the commercial Increase of the Nation hath established, but is at once for tearing away the terests of the Nation hath established, but is at once for tearing away the terests of the Nation hath established, but is at once for tearing away the terests, which, in due Time, might be matured into Fullness of Size and Vigour; without ever resecting, that when the Hen is destroyed by his Violence, there will be no more Golden Eggs.—The following Passage justifies this Observation—

"If we have from the Colonies their ALL already, we only have it (fayshe) by Trade, and not by Taxes; and furely it is not the fame Thing, whether the Wealth be brought into the Public Coffers by Taxes, or whether the Wealth be brought into the Pockets of Individuals, and, by coming in by Trade, flows into the Pockets of Individuals, augmenting